

6 KILLER BENEFITS OF WORKING FROM ANYWHERE

Did you know... 14.1 million people in Britain want flexibility in their working hours or location? That means almost half of Britain's working population wants to work flexibly. Flexible working works! Here are six stats to prove it

1. JOB SATISFACTION

Working from anywhere brings a "big, positive change" to employees' life of SMB employees that requested flexible working from their employers said it has made a positive difference to their working life

>80%

2. PRODUCTIVITY

You don't have to be chained to your desk to be productive

92%

of Britons who are currently working would be able to manage their time more effectively, thus allowing them to devote extra time to work tasks, if they had the flexibility

3. SAVING MONEY

Flexible working can contribute a whopping £90bn to the UK economy

British employees could save a whopping

£3.8bn

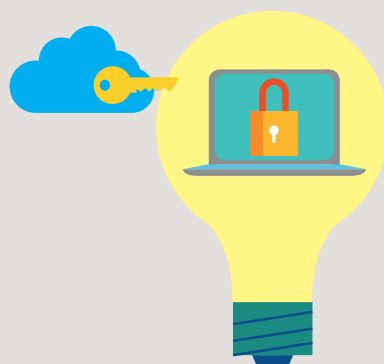

and 533 million hours a year in commuting time

4. IMPROVING STAFF RETENTION

Offering flexible working reduces staff turnover

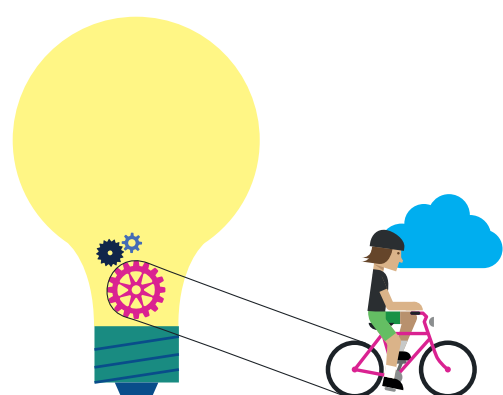

4/5

(82%) managers reported flexible working in their organisations led to improvements in retention of staff, productivity, and commitment

5. GETTING MORE WORK DONE AND BEING MORE CREATIVE

"Work should be a thing you do not a place you go" – Dave Coplin

About three-quarters of UK office workers "get more done" if they work flexibly, and

38%

say they are more creative when flexible

6. RESPONDING BETTER TO CUSTOMER NEEDS

Flexible working reduces absenteeism in the workplace

62%

of managers said flexible working helped their organisation respond better to customer needs
