

Microsoft Vendor Code of Conduct

Microsoft aspires to be more than just a good company – it aspires to be a great company. What will make Microsoft great is a strong commitment to our mission of enabling people and businesses throughout the world to realize their full potential. Achieving our mission isn't just about building innovative technology. It's also about who we are as a company and as individuals, how we manage our business internally, and how we think about and work with customers, partners, governments, vendors, and communities.

The global business environment is continuously changing and demanding more from us as a company and as employees. Not only does the world expect us to deliver the best products and services, it also expects us to conduct ourselves ethically and responsibly. It is essential that we conduct ourselves at all times with integrity and in full compliance with the laws and regulations that govern our global business activities. Microsoft has established a set of company standards of business practices and regulatory compliance that are set out in the Standards of Business Conduct which applies to all Microsoft employees, directors, and officers. (www.microsoft.com/mscorp/legal/buscond). The Microsoft Standards of Business Conduct are an extension of Microsoft's values and reflect our commitment to ethical business practices and regulatory compliance.

Microsoft expects that its vendors ("Vendors") will share and embrace the letter and spirit of our commitment to integrity. We understand that Vendors are independent entities; however, the business practices and actions of a vendor may impact and/or reflect upon Microsoft. Because of this, Microsoft expects all Vendors and their employees, agents, and subcontractors (Vendors' employees, agents, and subcontractors shall hereinafter be referred to collectively as "Representatives") to adhere to the Microsoft Vendor Code of Conduct while they are conducting business with and/or on behalf of Microsoft. All Microsoft Vendors should educate their Representatives to ensure they understand and comply with the Microsoft Vendor Code of Conduct.
